

I am opposed to Bill 7-23, 'Consumer Protection – Gasoline Station Signage'. Requiring gas stations to display the credit card price for a gallon of gasoline or the highest price for a gallon of gasoline will remove the incentives for gas stations to offer a discount for cash purchases. I strongly feel that the current state law requiring that, "the signs must include the lowest unit price charged for regular gas on the premises," is in the best interest of consumers.

The current law allows consumers that are concerned with getting the lowest price to compare lowest prices, and decide if paying via a credit card is worth the additional cost.

Michael Baker

████████████████████

████████████████████